- Studies in Cooperatives is committed to maintaining the highest standards of academic rigour in publishing policy-relevant manuscripts on cooperatives and the solidarity economy.
- To that end, the journal employs a double-blind peer-review of manuscripts submitted to the journal.
- The double-blind peer review process helps mitigate potential biases, conflicts of interest and ensuring that manuscripts are only reviewed based on scientific merit and contribution to the field of cooperatives and the solidarity economy.
- To ensure consistency in the review process, we provide detailed manuscript review criteria to reviewers, including originality, clarity, relevance of chosen methodology, significance of findings, and adherence to ethical guidelines.
- We encourage our reviewers to provide timely and constructive feedback to authors that will help them improve the quality and impact of their research.
